Minister Accuses Mayor Of Pie Eating Cheating

by James Giese

Mayor Judith Davis was publicly accused of cheating from the dais of the Greenbelt Community Church sanctuary by its minister, the Reverend Daniel Hamlin on Sunday of Labor Day Weekend. He charged that the mayor had switched her half-eaten peach pie with the mostly eaten pie of City Manager Michael McLaughlin at the annual Labor Day Festival Pie Eating Contest. "This is not the first time that an elected public official has taken credit for the work of public employees," he said.

Hamlin also charged mistreatment by other pie participants. He told his congregation that he had apologized to all concerned for his past misbehavior at pie eating contests. He had felt that by being dressed entirely in white, other participants would give him the respect he felt he deserved, but they had not.

This reporter watched the pie contest, but from a safe distance. He did not observe any cheating, but did see Hamlin showered with ice and pie by the other participants. However, in this reporter's opinion, Hamlin failed to turn the other cheek, and responded in kind.

He had, however, apologized for his past conduct prior to the contest start. Hamlin had challenged last year's contest results. He claimed victory for himself for consuming the most pies by chucking the uneaten pies into a trash bag concealed under his vestments. However, last year's participants had accused the minister of cheating, the act he now repented this year.

The contest was delayed by one of the many downpours that occurred during the festival. That delay was apparently an excuse for some of the expected participants to fail to show. However, after searching the gathering crowd for potential celebrity participants, the city manager dispatched two young girls to use their feminine wiles on a young reporter and lure him into the future fray.

Final participants were: Mayor Davis, Councilmember Rodney Roberts, McLaughlin, Carl Hille, a reporter for a newspaper the name of which escapes me, and a boy named Patrick.

This year Pat Brent of the New Deal Cafe, sponsor of the contest, brought out delicious looking peach pies on trays of ice. Gone were the cream pies of last year. Rules were also changed. Brent announced this year's winner would be the person who could first finish or consume the most pie in three minutes time —

School Volunteers Needed With Technology Expertise

by Nelda Young

Greenbelt Elementary School is wired — wired for the internet, that is. As a Technology in Maryland School (TIMS), Greenbelt received a $50,000 grant for hardware, software, and staff development and has internet access through its own T-1. They are up and running with connected Gateway Pentium III computers in every classroom and 40 McIntosh IICI computers in the media center for a total of 200 computers in the school. But the students cannot take full advantage of the computers without some help from the community.

Technology Coordinator Wendy Geagan and Media Specialist Monica Pittman work long hours. They are willing to accept technical help from early in the morning till 8 at night. On special occasions they will even arrange a Saturday morning session.

First and foremost, they need a technical support lifeline for advice on using Network Neighborhood and McIntosh file sharing and Accelerated Reader programs on 40 computers all at once instead of doing it 40 times. They also need guidance to install third-party software on their Novell program file server, which runs Windows 3.1 programs to all the classrooms.

How will the computers enhance the students' education? The short answer is: Prince George's County's goal is to fully integrate technology and the internet into all of the curriculum, particularly the 3 R's: reading, 'riting, and 'rithmetic.

In addition to the county's goal, the long answer is: Greenbelt teachers want to put lessons and other activities online and to assess the students' work online. Computers can be used for language arts, science, research, writing, and spelling in addition to reading, writing, and

Woodland Way Work Subject of Meetings

Acting Director of Public Works, Kenny Hall, announced neighborhood meetings on Thursday, September 7 and Thursday, September 14 to explain upcoming street improvements on Woodland Way. Both meetings are to be held at 7:30 p.m. at the corner of Woodland Way and Hillside Road.

Some time in September or October, street improvement work will begin on Woodland Way. The work will consist of replacing all curbs and gutters on both sides of the street and resurfacing of the street. (In areas that have a "rolled" curb, "rolled" curb will be put in. In areas where there is "standard" curb, "standard" curb will be installed.)

Hall said this work will cause interruptions at the driveways as the curb and gutters and, in some cases, a part of the driveway is replaced. Residents will not be able to use their driveways for one or two days, but there will be on-street parking. Signs will be posted a week prior to the start of construction.

After the concrete work is completed, a contractor will begin street repairs. The street will be milled first, after which a new two-inch asphalt surface will be applied.

Hall hopes residents will attend one of the meetings to learn about the project. Questions about the project, either before or during construction, should be directed to Hall at the Public Works Office, 301-474-8004.

2000 Outstanding Citizen Is Leader in Education

Leta Mach receives the 2000 Outstanding Citizen Award from Rotary Club sponsor Courtland Lee at the Labor Day Festival opening ceremonies on Friday, September 1, 2000.

by Sandy Smith

Leta Mach, education leader and supporter of many community groups and causes, is Greenbelt's Outstanding Citizen for the Year 2000. Bob Zugby, chair of the Outstanding Citizen Committee, described a "hypothetical Outstanding Citizen," as he slowly provided details of this year's winner during the Opening Ceremonies of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival. According to Zugby, the "typical" Outstanding Citizen would have lived in Greenbelt for 25 years, would have broadened her attention from family and friends to the community at large, would lead many community initiatives to improve education, and would be a continual supporter of cooperative endeavors. Soon the audience began to guess that Leta Mach was that special person.

Accomplishments

Many know Mach as the chair of Greenbelt's Advisory Committee on Education, a position she has held since 1995. This committee works to involve the community in education issues, improve educational opportunities, increase support for the schools, and recognize exceptional performance by students and teachers. Property Owners in City May Face New Rules

by Diane Oberg

New regulations and fees affecting city property owners will be considered for final passage at the September 11 regular meeting of the Greenbelt City Council. A resolution raising nonresidential occupancy license fees will also be considered.

Four ordinances will be considered revising the city code chapters governing Buildings and Building Regulations; Licenses, permits, and miscellaneous building regulations; Planning and Development (to change soil and erosion control regulations); and Streets and Sidewalks (to provide for annual verification that surety bonds are to remain in full force and effect). The major changes are summarized below.

Building Regulations

If the revised ordinance is adopted, the city will be allowed to place liens against any property with unpaid fines or fees, including court judgments. In addition, the city will be able to correct emergency conditions and recover the costs using liens.

Where city officials have reason to suspect a property code violation but cannot gain voluntary entry to the property, they can request an administrative search warrant.

Occupancy license renewal fees will now be due 60 days prior to the expiration of the current permit.

Burglar Alarms

Under the proposed changes to Chapter 10 of the city code, the city will license burglar alarm businesses (companies that install, repair or monitor alarms), as well as nonresidential businesses using the alarms that already require a license.

The ordinance would also increase the fines for businesses with more than 12 false alarms to $250 (up from $200) per false alarm, impose a $50 late fee on fines not paid within 30 days in addition to allowing the city to deny police response to future alarms until the fines and a $100 reinstatement fee are paid. The two-year nonresidential alarm license fee will increase to $100 (from $50). The city will work with homeowners to reduce residential false alarms, but will not impose license or false alarm fees.

Other

If approved the ordinances will require work to begin within 60 days of a city permit for construction, alteration, enlargement, renovation or demolition and eliminates the requirement that the city Board of Appeals issue a decision within 21 days of the receipt of a written notice of appeal.

It Was a Soggy Success

There are a lot of Greenbelters and friends who don't know enough to stay in out of the rain. At least that was the case this past soggy holiday weekend. Through their efforts, the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival went on, in spite of it all.

Sunday night, for example, it showered intermittently and in between it drizzled. The Miss Greenbelt Pageant was moved indoors, but the many booths run by volunteers stayed open through it all. More surprising, people continued to come.

All weekend long, each time the rain stopped crowds seemed to emerge from nowhere to take part in the festivities once more. Those hardy ones had themselves a great time!

Two bad weather festivals in a row put a big damper on the profits raised to fund the festival events and the many causes for which booths were used to raise money. Only through the dedication of the many hard-working festival volunteers from the top on down, and the willingness of the public to come out in and between raindrops, was this year's festival a success, if not financially at least in spirit. Once again the Festival provided great enjoyment for families and friends.

Our hats off to everyone.

Letters

Parking, Please!

Now that the last ride has been ridden, and the last box of popcorn eaten, I think it is safe to say that the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival was once again a great success, and that those in charge of the planning did their usual wonderful job. My one request for next year's celebration would be to please find a better solution for visitor parking.

I am lucky enough to live on one of the courts closest to the center, and enjoy the easy access I have to events. I realize that there are many people from out of the immediate area who are not as fortunate, and need to drive to events, and thus need to park. While I welcome these folks, I really wish that they could leave their cars somewhere other than in the spots that those of us who do live here have to use. Every holiday, I am forced to park several blocks from my own home because others have come to enjoy whatever activities are being offered and take every space within reasonable walking distance.

This weekend in particular, in the rain, made for a very unpleasant trek, but even worse is the uneasiness I feel when this sort of thing happens in the nighttime hours and I have to walk alone, or with my small daughter, from wherever it is that I have had to park. These are our homes. I do not park in others' spaces when I go to other communities for celebrations, but this year I turned the corner to my street to find that there was a sign actually indicating that visitors should park there! I feel that that shows a lack of respect for those that live here as well as for those visiting, because the lack of parking must be frustrating for them as well.

Next year, let's try to find a place for our friends to park that will alleviate the already crowded parking situation on our street, even if it involves the use of a nominally-priced shuttle.

Melissa Dickinson
Editor's Note: The signs for Festival parking are intended to lead cars to various parking lots — several are school parking lots and one is the Springhill Lake Recreation Center. Shuttle buses run frequently between the parking lots and the municipal building.

Thanks to All

Thank you to all the folks who shared your appreciation during the Festival weekend for the News Review articles about the teachers at Greenbelt Elementary School.

And thank you to the people who have called and volunteered, especially the retired teachers.

Nearly all of those who called have already served at least twice and are making a difference.

And thank you to the Greenbelt Elementary School teachers who

City of Greenbelt COMMUNITY MEDIATION BOARD

The City of Greenbelt has re-established a Community Mediation Board under the auspices of the Prince George's County Human Relations Commission. This Board is comprised of city residents who have volunteered to receive mediation training and be available to mediate disputes between neighbors.

Mediation consists of a step by step problem solving process that results in the involved parties agreeing on a fair solution. Mediation serves as an alternative to litigation and brings both parties to the table on an equal basis. A mediator does not act as an advocate of either party. He/she reserves judgment and does not voice opinion.

Types of problems mediated may be noisy neighbors, barking dogs, trespassing children, blocked driveways, family feuds, littering, loitering, neighboring property neglect, small claims matters, etc.

Mediation services will be available at the Greenbelt Community Center on the second Tuesday and fourth Wednesday of each month. Any Greenbelt citizen who wishes to make use of this free service should call the Human Resources Officer, City of Greenbelt, 301-345-7203.

Classic Film to Play Greenbelt Theatre

The Emperor and the Assassin, set during the third century BC, is the story of an ambitious king, Ying Zheng, obsessed with unifying all of China and becoming its first emperor. To this end, he embarks upon an unparalleled reign of terror and brutality against all who, he believes, stand between him and his destiny.

Hoping to contribute in some way to Ying Zheng's dream of Chinese unification, Lady Zhao, his lover from childhood, devises an intricate fake assassination plot against Ying Zheng which, when "uncovered," will provide him with a legitimate excuse to invade the neighboring kingdom of Yan, his greatest obstacle to unification. He then plots a bloody attack on Lady Zhao's beloved homeland.

She is now forced to turn against her lover. Lady Zhao now truly supports the plot to assassinate Ying Zheng. The man finally chosen to kill the king is Jing Ke. Zhao soon finds herself drawn to the great warrior and the two fall deeply in love. In their final meeting, Lady Zhao confronts Ying Zheng and condemns his horrific deeds. She turns and walks away, leaving the king to forge his great empire alone.

The movie starts Friday at the old Greenbelt Theatre.

Golden Age Club

by Dolores Capotosto

Greetings to all Greenbelt GoldenAgers! I'm "pinch-hitting" for Ruth Huggins, who is on a vacation out West.

It was nice to see Florence Holly among the celebrities in the Labor Day parade. She's an exemplary representative for seniors. It seemed as if the rains held back just to let the parade go by. This reporter was among those who got drenched at the Festival — three times! But it was fun!

GoldenAgers are looking forward to all the fall activities, especially the classes and trips being offered. Ernie Varda announced that there will be a movie at the September 13 meeting.

The Travel Committee has been busy — GoldenAgers enjoyed an interesting trip on August 29 to the Textile Museum and the Woodrow Wilson home. President Wilson's bedroom is just as it was when he died there in 1924. Pearl Siegel was in charge of the trip. Thanks, Pearl.

Golden Age Club meetings are held on Wednesdays from 11 a.m. to noon, in the Multi-purpose Room of the Community Center. Seniors should come out to the meetings before the weather gets too cold.

Community Invited To Artful Afternoon

The public is invited to enjoy music, theater and the visual arts at an open house with Artists in Residence at the Greenbelt Community Center from noon until 5 p.m. on Sunday, September 10. People of all ages are invited to participate in this free event.

Activities include an exhibit reception by Greenbelt Pottery at the Greenbelt Community Center Gallery from noon to 2 p.m. and a pottery sale from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. From 1 to 2 p.m. Jeff Felsher will play guitar. A performance of "Macbeth" will begin at 2 p.m. with the Greenbelt Arts Center. At 3 p.m. the public may "battle it out" at a free stage combat workshop followed by a voice training workshop, also presented by the Greenbelt Arts Center. Artists may bring their art work or slides for discussion at a salon with the Artists in Residence at 3:30.

This event is sponsored by the Greenbelt Department of Recreation. "Artful Afternoons" are presented monthly. For more information contact Nicole DeWald, arts coordinator at 301-474-8000 ext. 107.

Special Group Helps The Hard of Hearing

The Prince George's County Group, Self-Help for Hard of Hearing, will meet on Thursday, September 14 from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Greenbelt Community Center. The group deals with hearing loss, one of the most common causes for depression in the senior population. Experiencing communications problems, many people tend to withdraw from family and friends. Participants may share their frustrations with the group and learn coping skills developed by others.

The speaker at the program will be Kristin Krotz, who will address hearing loss. The group is also putting together a list of organizations that provide financial assistance or will cover the cost of hearing aids for those who cannot afford one. Those whose insurance has a benefit in this category should inform the group so that it can be included in the listing.

For further information or directions call 301-474-0345.

Donors Sought For Blood Drive

The next scheduled blood drive sponsored by the Greenbelt Recreation Department and the American Red Cross will be held at the Greenbelt Community Center on Monday, September 11, from 2 to 8 p.m. All are encouraged to donate in this period of urgent need for blood.

For more information call Janet Goldberg at 301-397-2212.

Walk in the Parks

Take a walk with city horticulturalist Bill Phelan and park ranger Chris Cherry through Greenbelt's parks this autumn and learn about the plants, birds, and wildlife that thrive there. The walks are free and open to all ages. The first walk is Saturday, September 30, in Schrom Hills Park (meet at the picnic pavilion). Both walks start at 10 a.m. For more information, call the Recreation Department at 301-397-2200.

ERHS Supporters Meet Sunday

On Sunday, September 10, from 2 to 5 p.m., families and supporters of Eleanor Roosevelt High School will meet at Adelphi Friends Meeting House, 2301 Metzert Road, lower level dining room. For information, call Carol Nezzo, 301-864-5267.

Greenbelt Museum Annual Meeting

The Friends of the Greenbelt Museum will hold their annual meeting on Thursday, September 14, in the Senior Classroom, Greenbelt Community Center, at 7:30 p.m. Anyone interested in the activities of the Greenbelt Museum is invited to attend.

Highlights of the evening will be a showing of recent acquisitions including a Berwyn Heights policeman's badge from 1937 and some pieces from the new set of Depression glass. The recently completed video on growing up in Greenbelt during the early days also will be shown. Refreshments will be served.

Folk Dance Group Holds Open House

by Lindley Darden

Haunting eastern European melodies, people moving together in lines or circles, doing steps that feel good because they survived in the village square — that's what I like about international folk dancing. Others prefer couple dances, such as the Russian Alexandrovsky; English country dances, such as Belfast Duck; or Israeli dances, such as Bapardes. Come and decide which you like best.

An open house international folk dance party will be held in the Multipurpose Room at the Youth Center on Friday, September 15, at 7:30 p.m. Bring a snack or soft drink to share.

Roland Forbes, the leader, makes everyone feel welcome, remembering names as well as the twelve steps in the Greek dance Zorba. For those who want to continue regularly, Forbes teaches Friday evening classes beginning September 22, beginners at 7:30, regular teaching at 8 and special requests from 9 until 10.

No partners are needed but comfortable shoes are a must. Sign up for this Greenbelt Recreation Department activity at the September 15 party. There will also be walk-in registration at the Greenbelt Community Center. For information call 301-397-2208.

GED Registration Is September 19

Greenbelt CARES will begin the fall 10-week GED Course with registration Tuesday, September 19, from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. only. The first class will be held on Thursday, September 21. Classes, which run every Tuesday and Thursday for 10 weeks ending Thursday, November 30, are held in the Conference Room in the Municipal Building.

GED I is held from 10:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. GED I is for students who need review of basic math (addition, subtraction, multiplication, division, fractions, decimals, percentages and word problems) and English grammar skills.

GED II is held from 1 to 3 p.m. GED II is for students who have successfully completed GED I and/or are ready to learn algebra and geometry, English literature and writing skills, and prepare to take the GED test.

Students are required to show proof of residency (i.e., current lease, phone or electric bill, driver's license or Motor Vehicle I.D. card).

There is no charge for Greenbelt residents in either course. Non-Greenbelt residents are required to pay a registration fee. All students are required to purchase a copy of the GED textbook (which can be purchased from Greenbelt CARES).

Students do not have to be 16 years of age in order to take the GED course. Students are eligible to take a GED pre-test given at Greenbelt CARES, at no cost. The actual GED test is given by the State of Maryland, not by Greenbelt CARES. However, students who are ready to take the test can obtain the application forms from Greenbelt CARES.

Questions concerning fees and enrollment information regarding GED I or GED II should be directed to Judy Hering, course instructor, at Greenbelt CARES, 301-345-6660, ext. 144.

PIE EATING

with hands behind each person's back.

For a brief moment, it appeared that this contest would be on the up and up as contestants quickly got their faces smeared with peach pie and pronounced them delicious. Then, it pains me to tell you, McLaughlin violated rules by removing his hand from behind his back and flipping ice cubes from the pie tray in front of him over the participants at the other end of the table — Hamlin, Hille and Roberts. Roberts responded in kind, flipping the ice cubes from a second pie tray over the participants at the other end of the table — Hamlin, Davis, McLaughlin and Patrick. Then individual cubes began flying in all directions, with the audience scurrying back, until all ammunition was exhausted.

At that time, pieces of pie crust and gooey peach filling began to be flung back and forth.

As a member of the fourth estate, I was shocked at the way the public officials treated reporter Hille. He had been carefully observing contest rules, for the most part. It was horrible to see the way these feeders at the public trough dumped pie and ice on him.

Meanwhile, Patrick kept attacking his pie with sheer enjoyment. In a fair contest, he probably would be the winner, but McLaughlin, also an aggressive eater, appeared to have the edge because he was also flipping pieces of his pie at that poor reporter.

As I said, I did not witness cheating — probably because of the safe distance I maintained, the many other things happening at the same time, and my dazed condition from observing the abuse of the press. However, suddenly Brent declared the contest over and Davis the winner. Only seconds earlier, her pie was only half eaten, but now it was down to a partial crust and no filling.

No other contestant challenged the decision at that time. They were too busy trying to clean their eyes and faces of peach filling.

Patrick quietly took off with what remained of his pie. I presume he sought out some quiet spot away from the madding crowd to finish off that delicious New Deal Cafe peach pie.

A Review Shakespeare on the Green 2000 Played Well Despite Heat

by Sabine Hentrich
Despite a mercilessly piercing sun, background noise, and many other attractions around, the Greenbelt Arts Center's Shakespeare on the Green production of "Macbeth" at this year's Labor Day Festival drew a large crowd which stuck with the play throughout a very hot and muggy Labor Day afternoon.

Director Michael D. Cooney, who also played MacDuff, intended the play to have an authentic flair. Therefore, he not only produced it for an open air stage in a festival setting, but also marched his "acting troupe" with costumes and gear from the Arts Center to the festival stage while an actor played the only instrument used in the play: a drum. Cooney did a marvelous job guiding the audience through this tale of witchcraft, greed, and murder although he made one significant change to Shakespeare's original: he used a one-hour-and-15-minute version of "Macbeth," first produced in 1934 by the Globe Theater in Chicago.

Matt Oney was persuasive as the most famous Scotsman. From the beginning until Macbeth meets his destiny, Oney showed loyalty and love for his wife as well as adequately displaying his moral dilemma concerning the slaying. Cooney picked a dedicated actor for this difficult role who had no trouble staying focused although trapped inside a heavy, thick costume during one of this summer's worst days. Oney does, however, need to speak louder in order to be heard clearly, especially by the audience sitting to the side of the stage.

Cast as Lady Macbeth, Patricia Penn — who was also the producer — was just as confident as her stage husband. It was always clear that she was the dominant partner in their marriage and quest for power. Nevertheless, she too was not without a conscience. Penn captured the insanity scene splendidly and deserved every bit of the audience's enthusiastic applause.

Keisha Onika Harry, Heather Martin, and Melissa Avery made three despicable witches. Yet, the three need to project their voices better in order to be heard on an open air stage. Daniel Stewart, Tony DeMarco, Ricki Gonzales, Goven Martinez, Ron Sellner, Kevin Pinkey, Michael D. Cooney, and Alasdair Stewart in the play's important supporting roles were well cast. Most of their voices were crisp and clear over the carnival's noise.

The actors' professionally performed sword play, as well as their frequent use of stage blood, made the audience gasp while they admired them in Virginia Zanner's mostly simple and effective costumes (though it was a stretch to see the witches with Venetian carnival masks). Robert Holibaugh's set — a changing backdrop which functioned as the castle gates and many other locations — proved very versatile and appropriate for outdoor use.

Anyone interested in seeing this Shakespearean play as it was meant to be seen may do so on September 10 at 2 p.m. on the Greenbelt Community Center lawn (if it rains, the performance will be at an alternate location) or on September 17 at 2 p.m. at the Springhill Lake Community Center. (A stage combat and vocal method workshop will follow the Community Center lawn production.)

Police Blotter

Assault

7800 block of Mandan Road, Aug. 31, 6:06 p.m., a 20-year-old male non-resident and a 21-year-old male non-resident were arrested and charged with assault. The 20-year-old was also charged with possession of a handgun. Officers responded to a report of a breaking and entering in progress, with two suspects leaving the scene, one armed with a handgun. The two men were stopped in the area, and a pellet-type handgun was recovered. Investigation revealed that the men had entered the residence with permission of the victim's daughter. When the victim came home, he engaged in an argument with one of the men. The man then assaulted the victim, while his companion went to his vehicle and obtained the pellet gun. When he returned, the victim retrieved a knife from the kitchen, at which time both men fled the residence. After their arrest, both suspects were released to the Department of Corrections for a hearing before a district court commissioner.

Judith Davis noted that often Mach is the one presenting awards but on this occasion she was on the receiving end of well-deserved honors.

Davis said that Mach's guidance has been most critical in recent months with the many changes coming in the leadership and organization of the county's schools. Mach's service to education and the community encompasses serving as an officer or president of the Parent Teacher Associations in the several schools her children attended, including Greenbelt Center Elementary School and Eleanor Roosevelt High School. She also served on the Board of Directors for the Greenbelt Cooperative Nursery School and has produced educational books and videos.

Mach has had a long-term interest in cooperative organizations and is employed at the National Cooperative Business Association as director of Communications and Education. She has visited a number of other countries to assist in international development projects. For a number of years she worked at Greenbelt Homes, Inc., in charge of communications to the GHI community.

She has also been a reporter for the Greenbelt News Review for many years and is active in the Greenbelt Consumers Cooperative. She wrote a chapter of "Greenbelt: History of A New Town," written for the city's 50th Anniversary. Other community interests include serving as a docent at the Greenbelt Museum and serving on the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee in charge of publicity for over a decade.

Proclamations

Mach was honored with proclamations presented by many of the area's officials. Mayor Judith Davis presented a proclamation from the city. Davis, a former teacher, had many kind words to say about Mach's role in education and, through that, her contribution to the future of our community.

Another former teacher, Audrey Scott, the county councilmember representing Greenbelt, congratulated her on being named the Outstanding Citizen and lauded her ability to donate time and talent to important causes. Senator Leo Green and Delegates Mary Conroy and Jim Hubbard presented proclamations from the State Senate and the 23rd legislative district. Representing Governor Parris Glendening, Major Riddick said that "Greenbelt is great because its people are great" and spoke of Mach's commitment to the community.

The Opening Ceremonies program is sponsored by the Greenbelt Rotary Club, which was represented at the ceremony by President Courtland Lee. He offered congratulations to Mach and spoke of the Rotary's extensive national and international scholarship program — the largest of any organization.

Sharing the stage with husband, Darrell, and daughter Amy (who is completing her doctorate at Georgetown University), Leta Mach spoke of her family's support through the years for her community activities. Son Ryan couldn't be at the ceremonies because he was in San Francisco attending the wedding of a former Greenbelter.

Several on the stage spoke of Leta's usual calm and professional demeanor but Opening Ceremonies Chair Anne Castaldi said, "Leta's almost losing it tonight." You could not tell that by Mach's own words, which emphasized how much she appreciated this award and those who have worked with her in service to education and community groups.

Many community businesses and organizations presented gifts to the Outstanding Citizen, from bed and breakfast at area hotels to restaurant gift certificates to football tickets. The Greenbelt Nursery School provided the traditional tee-shirt. Later in a reception at the Municipal Building, Mayor Davis presented Mach with a replica of the Mother and Child statue.

Past Outstanding Citizens were at the reception, including Bruce Bowman, Joyce Chestnut, David Lange, Mary Linstrom, Dorothy Pyles, and Paul Rall.

on August 30. Residents and team members discussed challenges facing the community, and brain-stormed ideas to begin addressing them.

CARES Family Services has welcomed aboard Brigitte Jackson, a practicum student pursuing a degree in counseling psychology from Bowie State University.

During August, 21 families on average per week were seen for counseling services. The weekly average of individuals was 43; the weekly average of youths was 15. Approximately 27 students received tutoring assistance.

Souvenir Program

Did Your Program Get Wet?

The festival program is still available for only $1.00. It's a professional presentation of the general schedule, and includes special breakouts of the Miss Greenbelt events and of all stage events. It has pictures and information for each of the Miss, Junior Miss and Little Miss Greenbelt contestants, as well as pictures and stories of performers and of past festivals. For one dollar, festival planners believe it's a real value that you will want to keep for future reference or send to friends and family who have moved away to help them keep in touch with the Greenbelt spirit. Call Jeannie Smith—301-345-1091.

PROCLAMATION

WHEREAS, Leta Mach has been a resident of Greenbelt for 25 years and, since moving here, has been an active volunteer and participant in the organizations and institutions of this City; and

WHEREAS, since its formation in 1995, Leta Mach has ably served the citizens and the City Council as Chair of the Advisory Committee on Education, a role that proved to be especially critical in recent months as the City dealt with changes in educational policy and personnel; and

WHEREAS, for more than 20 years, Leta Mach has worked as a reporter and member of the Greenbelt News Review, and

WHEREAS, since 1993, Leta Mach has served as Secretary and Board member of the Greenbelt Consumer Cooperative; and

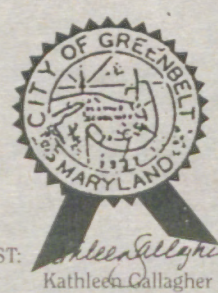

WHEREAS, Leta Mach has contributed her time to many other groups, including having served as Treasurer and Board member of the Greenbelt Cooperative Nursery School; President of the Greenbelt Center Elementary School PTA; President of the Eleanor Roosevelt High School PTSA; member of the Eleanor Roosevelt Community of Schools Community Advisory Board; Information Specialist and Chair of the Audit Committee for Greenbelt Homes, Inc.; Chair of the Greenbelt Oral History Committee for the community's 50th Anniversary; docent at the Greenbelt Museum; and Publicity Chair of the Greenbelt Labor Day Festival Committee; and

WHEREAS, in her work with the National Cooperative Business Association, Leta Mach also directs education and communication programs related to promoting and protecting those same principals of cooperative enterprise upon which Greenbelt was founded;

Leta M. Mach
Greenbelt Outstanding Citizen - 2000

to recognize you as exemplifying those qualities that traditionally have made Greenbelt an excellent place in which to live and, as such, truly deserving of this commendation.

Did You Lose It At the Festival?

The Police Booth at the Labor Day Festival became the repository for "Found" lost items. Also, persons who lost something reported their loss at the booth.

One sad lady is particularly upset over the loss of a "dog tag" attached to a single key. She would be delighted if the finder turned it in to the police.

Lt. Thomas Kemp reports that festival goers turned in the following found items: a single silver key (no tag attached); a set of two keys (one with green tape on it) attached to a brown leather fob with "Mazin' Street Music" printed on it; a pair of prescription glasses, metal frame with a black case.

To claim or report lost or found items, call Lt. Kemp at 301-507-6503.

VOLUNTEERS

addition to reading, writing, and arithmetic.

Pittman and Geagan have found that computers motivate children to do assignments that they might be reluctant to do otherwise. And, to be fully integrated into society in an industrialized nation, students must be computer literate.

Wonderful sites are available online for children. Lightspan.com, EnchantedLearning.com, and ComptonsEncyclopedia.com are examples of educational web sites. Activities such as writing biographies of the First Ladies are made more appealing when the students do research on the White House internet site. Last year Greenbelt Elementary students researched their Science Fair projects online.

Typically the teachers bookmark helpful internet sites to speed up the students' research and then the students use word processing to write their reports. In addition, this year the teachers hope the students will be able to make graphs to enhance their project displays.

Other Volunteer Needs

Students need more individual attention than two staff members have time to give. The school must turn to the community for technical and non-technical help. They need volunteers: grandmothers/grandfathers, empty nesters, parents, and high school students.

Here is a laundry list of open volunteer positions in the media center:

- On-call computer specialists to solve technical problems, particularly with installation of programs
- Monitor Accelerated Reading tests
- Help students use the computers

- Assist during study hall with Scrabble, brain game, mind game, logic puzzles, geography bee, crossword puzzles, or chess

- Read to a child one-on-one or to children in a group

- Take 35mm and digital pictures

- Video/write for school television shows

- Monitor classrooms while teachers are in the library with other students

- Make backdrops at home for school television studio productions

- Videotape television shows from home e.g., Reading Rainbow, Between the Lines, Bill Nye Science Guy, Arthur, Blues Clues, Wishbone

- Shelve, check out, and stamp library books

- Clean/dust computers

- Pick up and deliver video tapes that have been recorded in a volunteer's home.

- Donate old sheets to be used as backdrops in television productions
